About the Author	399

This pioneering and authoritative study considers the profound impact of the growing global water crunch on international peace and security as well as possible ways to mitigate the crisis. Water is essential to sustaining life and livelihoods, yet it remains the world's most underappreciated and undervalued resource. One sobering fact is that the retail price of bottled water is already higher than the international spot price of crude oil. But unlike oil, water has no substitute, raising the specter of water becoming the next flashpoint for conflict. Water wars—in a political, diplomatic, or economic sense—are already being waged between riparian neighbors in many parts of the world, fueling cycles of bitter recrimination and exacerbating water challenges.

Writing in a direct, non-technical, and engaging style, Brahma Chellaney draws on a wide range of research from scientific and policy fields to examine the global linkages between water and peace. Offering a holistic picture and integrated solutions, his book promises to become the recognized authority on the most precious natural resource of this century and how we can secure humankind's water future.

Conductor Summer Discussions and a Road view

This book traces the origin of India's special caregory states, explores their problems, and exposes structural weaknesses inherent in the partiern of financial assistance to them in the someon of india's financial federalism. It raises perfinent questions about their future, prompting one to revisit this issue. A truly commendable effort.

-Vinod Rai, former Comptroller and Auditor General of India

A remarkably comprehensive survey of the benefits, problems, and pitfalls of special category status, exposed with great lucidity. Viewing the northeastern states from the perspective of asymmetrical federalism, it throws much-needed light on this neglected and misunderstood region.'

A landmark study that not only remaps, but reconstitutes the fields of environmental, legal, and colonial history."

LAUREN MINSKY, Assistant Professor of history, NYU Abu Dhabi, UAE

Landscapes and the Law is situated at the crossroads of environmental, colonial, and legal history. It examines the role of law in consolidating early colonial rule from the perspective of people's access to nature in forests and hill tracts. This major interdisciplinary study is thus concerned with the social history of legal processes and the making of law, being as relevant loday as it was when first published a decade ago.

The book is focused equally on the multitude of colliding claims for access to land and resources, and the complex ways in which customary rights are redefined and codified for the purpose of securing and legitimizing colonial sovereign rule.

Basing her archival and field work on the Nilgiri Hills in South India, Gunnel Cederlöf explores conflicting perceptions of nature and political visions that are projected onto landscapes and people. She traces debates on property and land rights, and how the empirical sciences merge with the legal claims justifying land acquisition. Popular resistance strategies to such exploitation are analysed, and a cross-cultural comparison made between early legal processes and social history in India, New Zealand, and North America.

Gunnel Cederlof is Professor of History at the Linnaeus University, Centre for Concurrences in Colonial and Postcolonial Studies, Sweden.

About the Authors

Experience, Caste, and the Everyday Social offers a sustained argument that the social is experienced in various ways, through the senses as well as through conceptualizations such as self, time, and friendship. By looking at the experiences of everyday life in societies like India, the book attempts to understand how different socialities are formed and sustained. It offers new insights on themes such as the ontology of the social, the way the social is experienced, the nature of social that operates in the world as invisible authority, along with the creation of notions such as social self and social time. Endorsing the concept of 'Maitri', signifying ethical relationship among multiple social entities, the authors offer a distinct theory of the social supported by ample empirical observations.

Gopal Guru is former professor, Centre for Political Studies, Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi, India, and chief editor, Economic and Political Weekly.

Sundar Sarukkai is a philosopher based in Bengaluru, India.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

King's book is remarkable for its quality of research, fairness of approach, and depth of analysis. I know no other work on the Vykom satyagraha that comes anywhere near it. Its value is not limited to that particular historical event as it offers powerful theoretical and practical insights into Gandhi's science of satyagraha itself. Probing him from a novel perspective and highlighting both the strengths and limitations of his religious approach to political issues, it is a most welcome addition to the large and growing literature on Gandhi and deserves to be widely read and discussed.

OXFORD INDIA PERENNIALS

Classics from a century of OUP India's rich and diverse publishing updated with new covers

THE CONSTRUCTION OF COMMUNALISM IN COLONIAL NORTH INDIA

A milestone in contemporary debates on the modern political community, this book initiated a radically new analysis of communalism, nationalism, and colonialism. It offered a sustained critique of an identity theory of politics and history, a mode of thinking and analysis that was the gift of nineteenth and early twentieth century social and behavioural science. In challenging widespread notions of naturalized identity, it questioned the homogenizing and reductionist claims of both modern nationalism and communalism. This edition contains a new preface, which reopens many of these fundamental questions.

The Oxford India Perennials edition is testimony to the status the book has acquired as a modern classic since its first publication in 1990.
